* Mobilising European Research for Development Policies
EADI will be participating in a workshop on "Mobilising European Research for Development Policies" from 20 - 21 March in Brussels. The workshop marks the next stage in a process launched at the EADI General Conference in 2005, at which the need of strengthening the contribution of the EU development research community to EU development policy had been underlined. Discussions since then have crystallized around the idea of a European development report (EDR), an annual research-led review of development issues and a European counterpart to other major flagship global reports.
