Fall Academy on:

The Economies of the Commons: Reshaping Socio-Economic Education

September 19-23, 2012

PROGRAMME AS OF SEPTEMBER 6, 2012

The Fall Academy 2012 will thematically focus on the economies of the commons, i.e. places of being-together, in which people consciously shape their economic activities freely and in cooperation, thus beyond economic self-interest as well as pre-given rules and laws. The workshop particularly addresses the question of how we can actively strengthen the economies of the commons in a development context. How may we promote them in the midst of competitive activity without submitting to its alien logic and allowing the economies of the commons be destroyed in its hands? What do communities need in order to organize themselves? What contribution can socio-economic education offer, here? How should it be shaped in the future?
